AN AUGUST IDYL.

"There was a piper who had a cow,
And he had no hay to give her;
So he took up his pipes and played her a tune.
Consider, old cow, consider."

—MOTHER GOOSE.

In this month, named for Augustus and sacred to Sirius, it might be well to consider just what's best for the body to array itself in, and where's the best place to buy it. If our frequent admonitions have had the effect intended, the old nursery rhyme will be recast thus;

If every lady in this good town,
Would do as Wisdom doth bid her;
She will soon show her face at our elegant place,
Consider, good folks, consider.

UNDER THE FLAG.

It Was Very Small But Large Enough to Protect the Home.

During the rival war foraging parties belonging to the various brigades of the United States army were instructed to refrain from making raids upon the farms and larders of "union men," of whom there were not a few in Virginia. No doubt many secessionists found it convenient to call themselves union men when the federal regiments were swarming over the roads and through the field in their vicinity, but we will hope that the home builder of whom the following story is told, belonged to the class of genuine patriots.

He was the great distress lest his premises should be pillaged by an approaching federal brigade, as those of his neighbors had been. He made haste, therefore, to secure an interview with the commanding officer, and protesting that he was a union man, begged that a guard might be placed over his house until the brigade had passed.

The general replied that he could not spare soldiers to guard the houses of all who claimed to be loyal. "But," he continued, "if you are a union man, put out the United States colors in front of your house. The foragers will respect them, and let you alone."

The Virginian hastened home, and rummaged his house in vain for a United States ensign. At last in his distress he came upon a cigar box, on the outside of which, as one of its decorations, was a United States flag bright in color, but less than an inch in length. Quickly he stripped the paper off the box, pasted it on the front of his gatepost, and stood guard by it to swell events.

Soon a party of foragers under a sergeant came along. They were about to make a raid on the premises when the householder halted them with the remark that their commander had assured him that the United States flag which he had displayed would protect his home.

"Just bah see!" replied the German sergeant; "but were ish your flag?"

The Virginian pointed to the bit of paper pasted on the post.

The sergeant gravely produced an eye glass, and with it carefully examined the microscopic flag. Then straightening himself up, he said:

"Vell, it bah very small, but it bah big enough to cover the house!"

HANCOCK IN BRONZE.

Equestrian Statue to Be Erected on the Battlefield of Gettysburg.

A colossal equestrian statue in bronze of Gen. Winfield Scott Hancock will in about a year be set up by the state of Pennsylvania on the battlefield of Gettysburg, where he stood with his staff and then Howard discussing the action and pointing in a general way toward Round Top.

This statue, which is to cost, with its granite pedestal, about $30,000, is the work of F. Edwin Elwell, and has just been finished in the plaster by the sculptor at his studio in New York city. It will be put into bronze by Bureau Brothers, of Philadelphia.

The statue is 17 odd feet high; the horse measures 9 feet 6 inches in the withers, and the bronze plinth is 11 feet 3 inches long by 4 feet 6 inches wide. The 9-foot pedestal, designed by an architect friend of Mr. Elwell, is remarkably artistic, with cartouches on either side, one with the name of the subject on the right and that of the sculptor and date on the left. The statue will be one of the largest equestrian works in the country. The figure of Hancock standing would measure 13 feet 6 inches.

Mr. Elwell's statue is picturesque, dignified and forceful, and is said to present an excellent likeness of Gen. Hancock as he appeared at that time. The pose of the figure is easy and commanding, and the modeling strong, simple and broad, the textures being notably well preserved and the fact being made essentially evident that the man and horse and trappings are separate objects. The general sits in his saddle like a fine horseman.

The face of Hancock is full of life, and the hair, then worn rather long, like the mustache and goatee, adds much to the picturesqueness of the figure. The horse, a fine animal, is full of life, and its pose is rapid, standing still, with one foot pawing the air. The horse, which from the left of the writer has somewhat of a classic character, has its head turned to the left in well-chosen contrast to that of the general, which is directed to the right. In expression the head of the horse is remarkably lifelike and alert.

Mr. Elwell has made his statue without any sketch model, preferring to model it directly from life and still life in every part.

What the Woman Has Done.

The Tacoma Ledger says that "the champion girl of the period lives out on the Muck. From April 1 to June 1 this year she planted three acres of potatoes, did all the cooking and sewing for the family, milked four cows, fed the calves, pigs and chickens, shot three chicken hawks and a wildcat, set the dog on eighteen tramps, attended thirteen dances and three picnics, read five dime novels, and sat up four nights in the week with her head, and yet we often hear the question asked: 'What is there for women to do?'"

HIS FUNNY SHAPE.

The Young Lady Could Not Get Onto the Umpire's Curves.

Not everyone who goes to a baseball game knows all about the game. Some of them, principally women, know considerably more about many other things.

This was illustrated at the Philadelphia Baseball park the other day. She had been going for the last five games and began to think she knew something more than her sisters. But there was one thing that floored her, and that was the umpire.

"Hasn't he got a funny shape," said she to her escort. He replied, "yes," in an absent-minded way, for there were three on base with a hit scored.

The crisis past, the conversation was resumed.

"Why do they have such a deformed man there?" asked she. Her escort looked at the umpire several times, but could see no deformity. So he asked for information.

SITE THOUGHT THE UMPIRE WAS DEFORMED.

"Why, don't you see how his stomach is shaped?" was the reply. Then it began to dawn upon the baseball enthusiast that his fair companion did not realize that the umpire had on a chest protector and it made him look like a lean spring chicken. He explained.

Where Weddings Are Melancholy.

A Japanese wedding would appear to be a melancholy affair. It is not good form for the bride over there to admit that she is glad to get married. When the end of the process she is expected to howl loudly and long. Also she must keep it up by day and by night until the ceremony takes place. After she has been richly dressed for the event she must renew her shrieks and long lamentations as her attendants throws a veil over her face. Then an old woman takes her on the back and carries her to a sedan chair. When she arrives at the bridegroom's house she is a wife, the simple rite in which every charm lies the only legal ceremony required, though profuse entertainments and congratulations from assembled guests follow her arrival.

CYCLING IN CHINA.

Some Woes of a Yankee Wheelman in the Flowery Kingdom.

The Way "Ah Sin" Showed Appreciation of "Foreign Devil" Front Legs—Followed by a Howling Mob of Angry Pigtails—Some Narrow Escapes.

[Special Letter.]

When Wheelman Frank G. Lowe, of Pittsburgh, began his now famous world-girdling bicycle tour under the auspices of the Outing Magazine, neither he nor the magazine people dreamed of the serious perils the sturdy young fellow would be compelled to face during his passage through the land of the uncertain Mongolian. The lower classes in the interior of China are imbued with a combination of superstitions, ignorance and detestation of foreigners, or "foreign devils," as they are politely termed, which is almost past belief. We of this enlightened land can afford to smile pityingly upon such narrow-mindedness, but to the daring wheelman pedaling his "foreign cars" through John Chinaman's territory, native prejudice becomes a very serious thing indeed. In the May number of Outing poor Lens gives some striking illustrations of this, and in a letter just received by the publisher of Outing he uses the following significant language in reference to an attack upon him by a mob of ignorant natives: "For a moment it was touch and go. Two score of hoes and clubs were many times more than a match for my revolver, and I knew it. To fight was useless; to pray seemed equally vain, for I expected as if the Lord had not forgotten this country lately, and had quite looked the lonely Yankee wanderer. For some unknown reason (Providence interfered, I fully believe), the mob held their hands for one moment. It was a fearful pause—like the paws of a grizzly bear, one may need experience it but once in his life. The scene is burnt into my memory and will never be forgotten. I was calm, for in truth I could hear the rippling of the dark river. There was no need to think or struggle more—I realized that I had enjoyed my last outing."

Speaking of accommodations furnished to travelers, Lenz says: "On arriving at a Chinese inn I never asked any questions, but relied the wheel right in, sat down among the Chinamen, and ordered my rice as unconcernedly as a native. From two to four bowls of rice compose a square meal, and in the center of the table are fish and greens, from which each helps himself with chop sticks. The heads and bones of the smaller fish served are eaten as a matter of course, and I caused surprise by tearing my share undevoured. During meals, pigs, dogs and cats lovingly slide between one's legs in and out from under the table.

"Three times a day the innkeeper cooked rice and greens for one wheelbarrow coolie and myself. I gave him some extra money for eggs and meat which he cooked fairly well.

"Most of the people live in abject poverty and subsist wholly on rice and greens. The proportion of poor in China is probably greater then in any other country in the world. The houses in the towns and cities are mostly built of frail brick walls, with floors of stone or brick in the more pretentious structures. In hamlets and the rural districts the walls are made of poles, mud, straw or light bamboo. Those structures are covered with tile or straw roofs and have no floors except the bare ground. There is but little furniture, generally only a table, with a few trestles to sit on. Even the Chinese mandarin has but a poorly-furnished house, though he makes such an elaborate display in his silks, satins and ornaments when seated proudly in his fancy carrying-chair. Then his attendants walking ahead with signs, flags and drums, and another hatchet-in-hand, his secretaries on ponies in the rear, are apt to impress the 'foreign devil' with the pigtailed potentate's importance.

"Stoves there are none. In cold weather a fire is built on the ground, and the smoke after filling the house escapes through the chinks in the walls and roof. The cooking-ovens have a chimney. Rice straw, brush and twigs from the fields, forest and hillsides are used for fuel. The charred embers remaining after the meals are cooked are scraped together into small clay pots and carried about to warm the hands and feet."

Lens thus described his first experience with hostile natives: "The air was bitter cold the third morning of our tramp, and the big coolie needed a double dose of opium. We got started by eleven o'clock, and had left the telegraph road to the left and had crossed the Yangtse river to the north side. The road was over a low bottom land to Wankiangshien, situated on a knoll, and surrounded by a partly ruined wall covered with vines. The crowd all yelled 'foreign devil,' at which I only smiled. I was walked along through the narrow and crowded streets. The coolies were tired and wished to stop here, but I was anxious to push on to a hamlet inn, knowing by experience there was no peace for me in a town of any size. At the west gate my coolies walked into an inn regardless of my wishes. The Chinese followed, pushing and yelling: 'Yankwichu.' The proprietor grew angry, my big coolie became excited, turned and called the crowd something that made them furious. They pounced upon him, one struck him over the head, and a general fight seemed likely to ensue. Quickly moving in front of my coolie and the crowd, I beckoned them to keep quiet, then ordered the coolies to pick up the wheel and leave the town. I followed by their side, and managed to keep the angry crowd off without using my revolver.

"Two of the nickeled hinges on my valise had been twisted off; the thieves had no doubt mistaken them for silver. Almost distracted, I pointed to the empty tool pouch, but the following

N thing Strange.

In diligent people who realize the importi part the blood holds in keeping it in body in a normal condition, find nothing strange in the number of diseases Hood's Sarsaparilla is able to cure. So many troubles result from impure blood, the best way to treat them is through the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla vitalizes the blood.

Hood's Pills are the best after-dinner pills, assist digestion, prevent constipation.

THE KNEIPPE CURE.

Peculiar Method of Treatment Originated by a Bavarian Priest.

The Kneippe cure has been brought to Paris from Germany and promises to become a fad of the summer.

It is a water cure without water cure, inspired by a Bavarian priest, the Abbe Kneippe, and consists in packs and local cold water applications. It condemns shower baths and all surface friction. The use of the towel is absolutely forbidden. Once wet the patient must remain wet until dried by nature.

The devotees wring their nightgowns out in the basin and go to bed in them. They also wear wet stockings a specified length of time each day, or walk barefooted in the wet grass or snow. They may not attend coffee or liquors, or wear flannel or silk, or furs or corsets. The regime is severe, and the garment worn next the skin, summer or winter, is of coarse brown linen, known as Carmelite or Kneippite linen.

Naturally this heroic Carmelitist treatment is easiest followed in the country, and within a short time the abbe's little village of Worrishofen, in Bavaria, has become a place of pilgrimage so renowned that in five months last summer nearly twenty thousand visitors, it is said, registered there.

It is the quality of these visitors that attracts attention, for they number among them such important personages as the Rothschilds, of Vienna, the duke and duchess Paul of Mecklenburg, the duke d'Alencon, the infanta Maria Therese of Portugal, the Persian shah's daughter, and bishops, patriarchs and papal nuncios.

The things that each people do everybody else wants to do, and so the Kneippe cure is the fashion.

Moreover some value has been found in it. The German physicians who began by pooh-pooh have ended by certifying that the humble abbe is a natural physician, and his system worth the attention of the scientifically trained doctor, and everybody in the German countries today has Kneippeist literature in the hand.

As to Pa Kneippe himself, he seems to bear modestly his honors, which have recently culminated in his being mandated to Rome to treat the pope. Credit is evidently due him for a disinterested effort to bring luxury-enfeebled people back to nature, and the simple and regular life of the orders appear to have furnished him the model.

"I will run down" from what ailing body I warm weather may have you feel a good to be rid blood purifier like Hood's Sarsaparilla. Try it.

At the Difference in the World.

"It would be much better, my dear," said the aristocratic mother with decision, "if you had less to do with Miss Billings."

"Why, mamma? Isn't she a nice girl?"

"I know nothing against her personally," replied the mother, "but it is just as well not to be identified too closely with a shop keeper's daughter. We cannot be too careful in such matters, Maude, if we are to maintain our social position."

"But you don't object to my associating with Miss Wilbur,"

"Not at all, Maude; not at all. Mr. Wilbur has no retail department, while Mr. Billings has. You should think of these things yourself, and not leave it all to me."—Judge.

Primary elections will settle the agony in the First and Fourth Districts to-morrow. Stone and Montgomery are both looked upon as the probable winners.

Miss Mary Phelps, daughter of Dr. J. Phelps, of Mississippi, a Southern beauty well known in Louisville society, has married Count Rensko Cicala Carnelli, of the Italian army. They will reside in Rome.

The remains of Miss Eliza Clay, daughter of Henry Clay, who died years ago while on a visit to Washington and was buried at Lebanon, O., were just been exhumed and re-interred in the Lexington Cemetery.

The work of registering the physicians of the State under the new law has been completed. More than 2,000 who had attended a medical lecture were given certificates. Those who had not, were examined and registered and 18 failed. More than 3,000 doctors have been denied from practice.

Some of the Headricks papers in the first district are adopting the tactics of the Vance organs of the state and are beating campaign lies on Capt. Hunter.

One of them charges that Stone was a coward in battle, and that he left a leg at Perryville. Consistently warfare will strengthen the limb, but Hendley boom has benefited Clardy. Honest John is a fair fight.

President Stevenson was able to be out on the other day when several tiresome speeches in the Senate, but he returned to Washington this week in time to take a tilt between his daughter, Mrs. Fairley, and her lover, a young man named Curtis, who did not exactly fall in with President's idea of a son-in-law. He has broken the engagement between them and sent his daughter off to the seashore.

Some people want Vance to send Vance to Congress we have to apologize to the Democratic party. We have the land for it.—Owensboro Messenger. Yes, but we would have to apologize to the Democratic platform before we could trust him to defend it. We favor the "free coinage of both gold and silver, without discrimination against either metal," and Vance would vote with the Republicans on the silver question. Now do you know it.

Most of the fall elections was held in Tennessee yesterday. Only two of the Supreme Court, district and county officers were to elect. The fight was on a fusion of the remnants of the Democratic party. The Democrats were confident of sweeping all along the line. They will come next and the race will be between Gates and Taylor. Its most exciting stage. The latter is believed to be in any event, though the Populists are making a tremendous effort.

The largest tobacconist who was in Louisville Monday says he thinks of Clardy may there be a still indignant at the attitude on this record as a Democrat. Those opposed to him are loud and expressed their views in such methods. Rule are fair minded Hopkins people are typical Democrats, with good honorable instincts. They carry at least half of the district and can vote as they will not carry Madison.

The most eminent lawyer of this section, who has been employed in cases in the county opposing Clardy: "I am disgusted with the attempt to injure Clardy as he has record is as follows: Democrat's and, though I have been another candidate, I would hesitate to withhold his devotion to the party. How the Democratic Party has recklessness to do his duty at times. This malignity and dodging should be rebuked by all friends of unbiased justice. Clardy's record is that of a high standard American man."

Show you contempt for the campaign liar by the way you vote on the 11th.

Gov. Brown has called the special session to choose Congressman Lisle's successor for November 6.

Conflicting reports continue to come regarding the probability of an agreement on the tariff bill. It is believed that some compromise will eventually be agreed upon.

A dozen one-horse politicians might answer till they were black in the face that Dr. Clardy had advised Democrats to "cut loose" from their party and his bitterest enemy here in Christian county would not believe it.

Sharp Nose, a disabled Indian scout, of the Arapahoe tribe, has been granted a pension of $12 a month. The people are already taxed $3 a head to pay pensions, but Mr. Nose is probably as much entitled to one as many others who got them.

Judge Vance has been in Hopkins this week, Mr. McClain in Daviess and Dr. Clardy as usual has covered the territory of two or three counties. He has been stopping a few pig holes under his fences in Daviess, McLean and Hancock. The lemons themselves were found in perfect repair.

Secretary L. W. Gaines, of Elkton, has issued from his own office the usual Minutes of the Kentucky Press association. The work contains nearly 70 pages and is not only gotten up in handsome style, but was turned out in less than sixty days, the shortest time on record. The book contains several interesting features including Col. J. W. Hopper's historical sketch, a complete list of the membership of 1869 and of 1894, the Constitution and By-laws and a synopsis of the proceedings of 1896, which were unfortunately not published in regular form. Secretary Gaines bids fair to make one of the most efficient officers the Association has ever had.

Here is what the Owensboro Messenger has to say of Judge Vance's goldbug speech, which the Henderson Gleaner published with an editorial repudiation:

"In his speech at Henderson last week Judge Vance reiterated his opposition to the free coinage of silver and declared himself upon that subject about in such language as John Sherman would. If Judge Vance were otherwise a congressional possibility these utterances would damn him before the people of the Second district, who have time and again declassed themselves in favor of the free coinage of silver, and their representatives in Congress for fifteen years have been the most pronounced friends of silver. But Judge Vance is not a possibility, and the fact is one of the several evidences of his impracticability."

Japan hasn't been at war with a foreign country for over fifty years. She has therefore done little or no fighting since she adopted modern implements of war. This fact lends additional interest to the war with China. The Japanese are fighters, however. They have shown that within a very few years. The stern methods with which a half dozen rebellions have been put down dampened afraid that the Jap will be a foe not to be despised. In the final battle of the rebellion of 1877 the rebel army was almost annihilated. Out of a total force of 600 but thirty escaped alive. In this uprising, which lasted about nine months, 7,000 lives were destroyed. The cost of the war to the Government was between $35,000,000 and $40,000,000. Both the Government troops and the rebels were equipped with modern guns and were officered by modern European soldiers. The rebels were led by the Satsuma clan, which had fought for the Government for generations.

What Can the Gleaner Mean?

Judge Vance's type-written speech has at last seen the light of day. The Gleaner, the rankest silver, paper in the district, has at last been induced to publish it, although it is a direct assault upon the editorial policy of the Gleaner as outlined in the same issue. Here is an extract from Judge Vance:

"And further, as to forty-five cents of its nominal value, the standard dollar is fiat money, and if to be issued without limit, it were as well to stamp paper or leather as the money of the country.

In that, however, the Populists are consistent, since they advocate a national currency to be distributed direct to the people, a tax not exceeding 2 per cent. per annum.

The only difference is, that the latter kind of money will be wholly fiat while the silver dollar proposed will be only 45 per cent. fiat money."

And here is the Gleaner's own opinion:

"The restoration of silver to its old position as one of the money metals of the constitution is the first step in the direction of restoring this country to its old time prosperity. Even that, however, would be but a beginning. While the unlimited coinage of silver would help matters very much, it must not be forgotten that the capacity of our mints is but $18,000,000 per annum, which would hardly be sufficient to keep the per capita up to the increase of our population. Some other means must be found to increase our stock of money."

Shades of Benjamin Franklin! To what has journalism come? By advocating a John Sherman goldbug for Congress, holding the views it does on the silver question, the Gleaner is simply stultifying itself. The rebuke his own organ gives Judge Vance in the same issue it advertises his "principles," is about the worst blow the "able statesmen" has received so far.

The first lynching of the month was at Elkhorn, W. Va., Wednesday night. The lynches was Anderson Holliday, a murderer.

Dr. W. G. Hunter was nominated by the Third District Republican convention Wednesday, as McElroy's opponent for Congress.

The Chicago Ledger has struck the nail on the head by starting in its issue of August 1st a fascinating love story entitle, "Caught in the Strike." It deals with the lots A. R. U. strike, giving names and places familiar to many of our readers. Sample copy, giving first instalment of the story, will be mailed free on application to the Chicago Ledger, Chicago, Ill.

Notwithstanding Dr. Clardy promptly and vigorously nailed the lie, the Vance organs continue to repeat the Madisonville slander with variations. This gives color to the report from Hopkins county that a lot of false swearing is to be done and so called "affidavits" from Clardy's enemies turned loose in the last days of the campaign. This old dodge, the meanest and most despicable that disgraces modern politics, no longer influences thinking men, except to fill them with contempt for those who procure or hope to profit by the false testimony. As a sufficient answer to any further "statements," we again publish Dr. Clardy's letter on the subject.

The continued bitter fight between the two Henderson county candidates for congress has rendered it impossible for either to get the nomination, so the plum is thus narrowed to Clardy, who has made a winning race from the start. Of course under the surrounding conditions it would be suicidal to the party for any serious split to occur in the ranks and it would seem that both Vance and McClain, seeing it impossible to win, ought to retire from the contest and allow the nomination to go to Dr. Clardy who alone, of the three candidates could carry to the November election a united democratic support. We intend this, and Clardy can give it to us, while neither Vance nor McClain can do it.—Calhoun Ledger.

Nothing but the most cheering news continues to come from Clardy's campaign in all parts of the district. His friends guarantee not less than two-thirds of Daviess and Webster, all of Hancock and McLean, and half of Union and Hopkins. This will give him, with Christian's 2,000 votes, from 45 to 46 votes on the first ballot. We have assurances from the best posted politicians in these counties that this is the exact situation one week before the convention. The fact that the Henderson papers cannot come to an intelligent understanding of the situation in their own county, discredits any attempts they may make to give reliable estimates from other counties. Clardy is a sure winner.

An Open Letter.

EDITOR KENTUCKIAN:

The speech at Manitou, Hopkins Co., in which the statement made by Ward Hardin, "That the people of Kentucky for the farmers to cut loose from the old parties and vote for the men" is alleged to have been made, was delivered five years ago, at a farmers' picnic. It was not a political speech, but issued to encourage the farmers to take more interest in selecting good men for office. Nothing was said about cutting loose from the Democratic party. On the contrary the farmers were urged to attend primaries and conventions, and if they wished to take combinations to make them inside the party. In no instance have I ever advised combinations made in any other way. I did say if incompetent and improper persons thrust themselves, or self important candidates, they should be ignored and good men brought out and elected, always inside the party organization. The "Third party" had not then been organized, and from its very inception I have always and everywhere opposed it, doing all I could to aid honest war to maintain the integrity of the Democratic party, meeting its foes at every available position and by speech and pen advising and urging the farmers and others to stand by the Democratic party, holding that it was the only party which promised such reforms as seemed needed and as were demanded by the people.

I have not had the slightest wavering in my Democratic faith, and no utterance of mine can be tortured into such a meaning as Headley seems to give. His statement is as I suppose it was intended to be, a campaign lie pure and simple. Every vote, act and speech made since, give the lie to any such interpretation of what I said. "What a man does he is."

If the Henderson Journal would republish a piece written by me on this very subject, about this time at its request, it might throw some light on this subject.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Cure. Send for circulars, free.

WAR IS DECLARED

More Than 3,000 Lives Already Lost.

War has been formally declared between China and Japan. Fighting began a week ago and in the first naval engagement the Japanese sank the Kow Shing, a transport loaded with 2,000 Chinese soldiers. Only eleven men escaped. The transport was a British ship and Japan has made a formal apology and will make full reparation. The first regular combat was between three Japanese cruisers and three Chinese warships and resulted in a complete victory for the Japs. The Chin Yuen, one of China's two best ships, went down with 1,400 soldiers on board. The other two Chinese vessels were captured. The latest is that China will push large armies by land into Corea and make a vigorous fight, but it has been demonstrated that Japan is too much for her on the seas. China will at once close the more important treaty ports, including Shanghai. This will be done by obstructing the entrances.

The Pigtails Died Fighting.

The following account of the Kow Shing disaster has been received at London:

"The Naniwa steamed quickly and lined up, broadside on, at a distance of about 200 metres from the Kow Shing, and immediately discharged a torpedo at her, following this with two broadsides with all her guns, comprising two of twenty-five tons and four of ten tons.

The excitement aboard the Kow Shing was awful. The troops had begun fitting a number of small mountain guns, when the Naniwa threw the torpedo. The missile struck a coal bunker and burst one of the boilers, the explosion being terrific, but not sufficient to sink the vessel.

The Chinese troops fired on the Naniwa with rifles and small guns, and exhibited the greatest bravery. The Naniwa continued to fire her ten-tonners, and soon had the Kow Shing in a badly disabled condition. Many of the Chinese soldiers jumped overboard, and on these the Naniwa rained bullets from her deadly machine guns.

The Kow Shing gradually began to sink, and after fifteen discharges from the cruiser's big guns she went down in eight fathoms of water.

The troops who remained aboard kept up their fire to the very last, some of their shots being aimed at their own people who were swimming away, they being determined that all should die together. The vessel sank even first, firing the red ensign of the Chinese.

One heavily armed boat was lowered from the Naniwa and from this a fire was directed upon the troops struggling in the water. There was no attempt to save life. It was evident that no quarter was to be given. All were to be massacred.

The Naniwa steamed away to report to the British consulate or naval officer that seven Englishmen had been killed. A number of soldiers reached a rock and were saved.

Col. Von Hanneken had a miraculous escape and arrived at Chemulpo in a Corean fishing boat on July 28. He was sworn to an affidavit before the British Consul in regard to the events above narrated. He learned from the splendid condition of the Chinese troops, who, he said, died gloriously, fighting to the last."

CHINA'S LAST WAR.

China has not been engaged in any war of consequence for ten years. The fight with the French over Tonquin began in 1882 and ended in 1884. China's forces were greatly superior to those of France, so far as the soldiery was concerned, almost immeasurably so. China had more ships at the seat of war also than did the French, and her ships being many of them of European build, it was expected that the Celestials would put up a strong fight, if indeed they did not finally win. But the war was short and victory fell to the French. Although the Chinese had modern ships, the modern guns powder and projectiles, and their soldiers were largely equipped with rapid firing rifles of European make, the yellow men did not know how to use their weapons, and their men and ships both melted away.

The most battle was Aug. 26, 1884, near the Pagoda anchorage in the Min River. This engagement was between nine French ships on the one side and seven European-built iron ships of the Chinese navy, eleven junks and three Chinese forts on the other. The first shot was fired at 1:55 p. m. from a French vessel, and in an incredibly short time the battle was raging in full blast. At 2 o'clock the Chinese flag ship Yung Wo was blown up by a torpedo. Eight minutes later a Chinese gunboat was destroyed. At 2:45 a Chinese sloop-of-war, wrestled in ruby flames, drifted down the river and sank with colors flying. At 4:51 another Chinese sloop-of-war grounded and then blew up. By dark the engagement was over with, and only two of the Chinese ships were still afloat.

The Chinese were absolutely demoralized by the rapidity and accuracy of the French fire. The deck of every Chinese ship that was exposed for any length of time to the fearful rain of iron missiles from the French machine guns presented a most horrible sight. Everything covered with blood, heads without bodies, bodies without heads, arms and legs, and trunks without limbs scattered in every direction.

It was during this war that Emil Farey, war correspondent of Le France, was executed. His crime was sending dispatches criticising the French and liars and sending them without showing them to Gen. Forgemat.

Pleasant Grove Sabbath School had "Children's Day" last Sabbath and it was a success throughout. Owing to the absence of the pastor, Rev. W. R. M. Crump, the exercises were ably conducted by Miss Linnie Newman, while Miss Ida Winfree managed the musical part of the program, and presided at the organ in her usual graceful way. Little Addie Crump made a speech in a manner which would have done credit to a much older person, and several songs by the children were deserving of much praise. A recitation by Miss Jennie Winfree accompanied by the song "Home, Sweet Home," was one of the crowning features of the occasion and every one regretted that the dear old song did not contain double the number of stanzas.

MADE-OVER CLOTHING.

New Industry Called into Life by an Enterprising Chicago Man.

"Here you are, any children, and would you like to buy some cheap clothing for them?" This came from a voice that came from a large moving bundle of clothing at a Chicago back door yesterday morning.

There was an innovation in peddlerism. The clothing club man had been around and all the rest of his ilk, but this was the first of this kind seen. He was invited in and negotiations for some of the stock were made. Shoers were boys' trousers for seven cents, a whole suit for 49 and girls' ruffled frocks for five cents, and various other things at victimously low prices. A purchase of 85 cents' worth made a favorable impression on the bargain man. It needed only a glance to see that the things were made over from larger garments. With the full influence of a cup of coffee and a plate of cakes the made-over clothes man was easily inveigled into telling a short history of the make and origin of the new industry. He had a large family. His wife and four-girls, all well grown, who could obtain no employment, had made some clothes for a neighbor's children in the evenings. This suggested a new manufacturing and mercantile field. The head of the house, who sorted rags in a warehouse, set about making a collection of larger garments of the sort that could be cut down. Sometimes he begged them and sometimes he bought them. The garments to be made over were washed before the cutting and sewing begins. A pair of trousers will make two pairs for a boy 10 or 12 years old. A wrapper or a dress will make four or five dresses for girls from 3 to 10. The clothes are all well made and cost the girls 10 cents apiece only as good as the average. They are primitive in style, perhaps, but what can one expect for a dime? There is no profuse display of buttons. The mother cuts and prepares for the sewing and the girls sew, while the father procures the material and does the selling. Sometimes they put for their week's work as much as $10, sometimes more.

Sherwood, of Evansville, Ind. Mr. Scriven during his stay here has made many friends and has proven himself a popular and most efficient agent.

One of the horses attached to the Asylums wagon ran off on North street Tuesday. The other horse refused to run and pulled the wagon into Mooyon's corner, where it ran against a telephone post and came to a sudden stop. Excepting the destruction of a gas post, no damage or consequence was done. The struggling horse broke loose, but was caught near the L. & N. Depot.

A very handsome map of Kentucky and Tennessee has just been published by George D. Free, of Hopkinsville, along with a list of the Governors in each state from its founding down to the present time. There are also tables showing the population of cities in both commonwealths, and the total population by counties as given by the last census. The map is well drawn, distinct in outline, and shows every point of interest in each county. All the railroad extensions and connections are accurately traced. It is just the thing for office use.—Louisville Times.

A vote was taken on the sale of liquor in the Bennettstown district last Monday and the Dry side prevailed by a vote of 99 to 60, a majority of 39. There has been no action in the district since last March. The renawal of license was resisted and petitions and counter petitions were circulated until the Wets demanded a vote to settle the question. They lost the fight and the district will remain Dry for three years and the cost of the election will fall on the Wets. Many of the colored voters voted for prohibition.

Two Paducah bicyclists passed through the city Tuesday en route home from a trip of 300 miles. E. O. Gleaves rode an Eagle and John Dipple a Premier. They left Paducah July 18 and made Cadiz the first day, a distance of 60 miles. They passed through Hopkinsville, Clarksville and Nashville and went 95 miles beyond Nashville in the direction of Lebanon. They covered an entire distance of 200 miles, which with the return trip will make considerably more than 300 miles, as they took several side trips and route over the

The Little River Baptist Association will meet next Thursday at Liberty Point Church, four miles from Cadiz. Bethel Association will meet at Elkton Aug. 21.

Mr. L. B. Thompson, of the Babcock Printing Press Company, is in the city to negotiate with the KENTUCKIAN for the purchase of a large press for its new building, which will be ready for occupancy in sixty days.

A very heavy rain fell Wednesday about noon which was accompanied by much wind. Many trees were blown down but no serious damage was done. It was the first ground-soaker and gully-washer we have had this summer and it put an end to all fears of further drouthe, for some time at least.

The mother of young Bud Garth, who is now in the Eddyville penitentiary for killing a negro, is circulating a petition to get the Governor to pardon her son. The Todd County Times has the nerve to editorially enter a protest against the pardon of the young man, who has made himself a terror in the vicinity of Trenton. It is said young Garth's own uncle and some of his first cousins refused to sign the petition. It is cool at all likely that Gov. Brown will interfere with his sentence, but there is some thing touching about the devotion of this bad boy's good old mother. He may not have another friend in the world, but a boy's mother can always be relied upon to stick to him as long as there is life in his body.

The "bloomer" is becoming firmly fixed in Louisville. The Post says: "Saturday for the first time I saw the local misses in their new costumes. I enjoyed watching them, and must admit that on the wheels they look much better than the flopping skirts which get tangled about and cling to the legs, and are really much less immodest. The leg is in view from the calf down. There are really more of these dresses in the city that one would suppose. Saturday I saw four young ladies riding together, and Sunday five created a sensation as they sped out Third street. I understand that at least ten young women have had the bloomers for some time, but have simply been waiting for some one to make the first appearance in it. For awhile they will be much more common at night than in the day. But I predict that within a month there will be so many of them that they will cease to attract attention."

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. request the publication of the following announcement: "The Woman's Christian Temperance Union meets every Thursday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. The Loyal Temperance League meets every Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. The parlors and reading rooms of the W. C. T. U. No. 102 South Main Street are respectfully open every day during the week (except Sunday) from 7 o'clock in the morning till 7 o'clock in the evening, and lunch is served any time between the hours of 9 and 5 o'clock, including ice cream and cake. The room is kept up by the Christian women of the town and country and is intended to fill a long felt need in our town. It is hoped that every one who feels an interest in the Temperance cause and the welfare of our town will aid us in our enterprise—by speaking a kindly word for it, by coming in and adding to the social features of it or by giving of their means when they can, especially in fishing lunch with us, when in town, or in need of one."

Judge R. M. Dillard died in Santa Barbara, Cal., on the 24th ult. A quarter of a century ago Judge Dillard left his old Hopkinsville home and emigrated to California to engage in the practice of law. He was a Virginian by birth but came to Hopkinsville with his father when quite young. Many of our older citizens remember him well and his schoolmates and friends will regret to hear of his death, though it has been 25 years since they saw him last. His father was one of our wealthiest citizens. The "steamboat house," on Main street, now owned by Capt. Jno. R. Green, was the Dillard residence at the time of the breaking out of the war and was the scene of many happy occasions up to that time, as the Dillard family was a large and very hospitable one. But when the cloud of war settled over our land great was the change. The Dillard house was the headquarters alternately of the different commandants of the Federal and Confederate forces stationed here, and after the war was over the property again changed hands, the young ladies having married, the mother and father having passed away and the youngest son, R. M. had gone far West. After going to California "Bob," as he was familiarly called, rose rapidly in his profession and some years ago was chosen Superior Judge. He married about seven years ago and leaves a wife and one child. Judge Dillard was the youngest of two sons. He had five sisters, two of whom are living in this county—Mrs. H. B. Garner and Mrs. R. G. Remington; Mrs. Prince, of Gallatin, Tenn., and Mrs. Jeff Mille-

TWO GREAT BALL GAMES

Bowling Green Goes Down in Defeat Before Hopkinsville.

NASHVILLE ATHLETICS COME NEXT.

Clarksville and Hopkinsville Come to Terms for Four Games.

Fully four hundred people went to Athletic Park Monday to see the first game of the series between Bowling Green and Hopkinsville. While the score was not close it was a good game from start to finish. Dr. Brad ley was in the box for the locals with Ward behind the bat, and had the visitors completely at his mercy, striking out eleven batters during the game. The hard hitting of the local club was especially noticeable, as was also their fine base running and fielding.

Bowling Green played well but were unable to hold their own with the home team. Score 14 to 5.

TUESDAY'S GREAT GAME.

Never before in the history of Southern Kentucky has such a magnificient game of base ball been played as was the last game of the series between Bowling Green and Hopkinsville. The game was a pitcher's battle from start to finish, and up to the ninth inning the game belonged to either side.

Marcum and Coyle were the battery for the visitors, while Hinton and Ward battled for Hopkinsville. Both pitchers were in excellent form, but Hinton pulled through with much the best of it. In the second inning Hopkinsville made two scores and from that time to the eighth inning the score stood one to nothing in favor of the locals.

In the eighth both sides scored two runs making the score stand 3 to 2 in favor of the locals and the game ended in this way.

In the first inning things looked gloomy for Hopkinsville, three of the visitors being on bases with only one out, then it was that Hinton showed what he was—striking out the next two batters and retiring the side. In the second inning he struck out three batters in succession, and through the whole game had the opposing batters at his mercy.

Lack of space forbids our going into details as to the good playing of all the players, but that of Andrews was especially noticeable. As usual he was all over the field and used his stick with vigor. Underwood put up a guilt edge game at first.

For the visitors Marcum, Coyle and Johnson led in fielding, while Whitehead did best with the stick.

The greatest sensation in ball circles at present is the meeting of Clarksville and Hopkinsville. The two clubs are bitter rivals and in order to settle their disputes the managers of the two clubs have arranged a series of four games, two at Hopkinsville Tuesday and Wednesday, August 14th and 15th, and two at Clarksville August 16th and 17th. Cheap rates have been secured on the railroads and the games will be called early so that everybody can see the series.

The Nashville Athletics, the strongest team in Tennessee, will cross bats with the locals Saturday at 2:30 p. m. The Athletic team went down in defeat twice before the locals week before last and now return for revenge. A good close game may be expected.

DAWSON SPRINGS.

DAWSON, July 30.—A line or two from this delightful health giving resort, may prove beneficial to some of your readers who are overworked, debilitated or worried with the monotony of life and need of rest. The fact is, I often wonder why so few of your readers avail themselves of these wonderful medicinal waters and a lovely pleasure resort, when $9.00 will pay your way to and from and give good board for a week. Why the refined cultivated society you meet, alone is worth double the money to any one. You meet the best people of the land here and such social unions are very elevating and refining.

About 300 guests are here, some invalids and a host of overworked women, and it is wonderful to see the improvement in most every case; they seem to take on a new lease of life. For several years I've arranged to spend a week here and feel it is the very best investment I make. About 25 here from your town and well you may be proud of your girls; they captivate all who can appreciate cultivated noble women, but little Kate won every heart she came in contact with (the present company not excepted.) She could roll up 1,000 majority, even in this Democratic county. Todd county's representative holds a high standard for beauty, intellect and purity of character. And the tension of some heart strings was great Monday morning, when the conductor shouted, "all aboard" for Todd county." We watched that little flag of truce held by the pearl like standard from the car window, until it was lost in the distance.

It haven't seen a visitor take a dram, or thrown a card (only in a social game) or heard an oath sworn since I have been here. They are too refined to indulge in such practices.

Yours truly,
